

Swiftclean - Ensuring Safety and Compliance in Hospitality.

- SWIFTCLEAN -

Award-winning air and water hygiene specialist, Swiftclean, provides comprehensive kitchen extract fire safety and general ventilation cleaning services, catering to some of the UK's leading hospitality providers with multiple locations, as well as numerous independent establishments across the country.

Managing Director Gary Nicholls is a respected authority in this field, serving as a co-author of the Building and Engineering Services Association (BESA) specifications, TR19@Air and TR19@Grease. These documents are recognised as the leading guidance regarding the internal cleanliness of ventilation systems, which is essential for ensuring the safety and efficiency of kitchen extract and general ventilation systems in the UK.

Additionally, Swiftclean is a long-standing member of the Legionella Control Association. The company offers specialised legionella control services, advising and implementing effective risk management strategies for hotels, pubs, restaurants, and catering establishments. This multifaceted approach ensures that clients not only comply with health and safety regulations but also protect their patrons from the risks associated with legionella outbreaks.

"Regrettably, the services we offer, such as kitchen extract fire safety cleaning and legionella prevention often do not receive the emphasis they warrant in the management of hotels, pubs, and restaurants," observes Gary Nicholls. "With so many operational challenges to juggle, proprietors may overlook these critical safety measures."

"However, it is imperative to perform thorough and regular kitchen extract fire safety cleaning to mitigate the risk of fire. Additionally, conducting a legionella risk assessment and, if deemed necessary, testing for legionella bacteria, is essential in preventing potentially severe outbreaks. Neglecting these critical responsibilities can lead to significant legal repercussions for building managers or owners, including prosecution and, in severe cases, custodial sentences."

To help address some of the challenges faced by those in responsible positions, Swiftclean has developed a range of 'packaged' services. These packages offer a discount when two or more services are ordered together. This approach not only provides cost savings but also saves building managers the time required to manage multiple contractors.

Through its commitment to safety and compliance, Swiftclean strives to ensure that its clients maintain a safe environment for both their staff and patrons.

www.swiftclean.co.uk

Silver service for kitchen extract fire safety.

You create the fabulous food, we'll look after your kitchen extract ductwork. No matter how healthy or exquisite your food, grease deposits will build up on the surfaces of your extraction hood and ductwork, creating a fire risk that must be removed. We've been market leaders in this type of work for 40 years, so you can trust us to do an expert job, meeting all the requirements of TR19® Grease.

 SWIFTCLEAN
Duct Cleaning & Legionella Risk Experts

0800 243 471
info@swiftclean.co.uk
www.swiftclean.co.uk